

US Postal Service To End Saturday Mail Delivery

The Infographic

Infographic • News • ISSUE 49•06 • Feb 7, 2013

The U.S. Postal Service announced this week that it would discontinue regular mail delivery on Saturdays, a move officials say will save the struggling agency $2 billion per year. Here are other measures the post office is taking to balance its budget:

- Shrewd new ad campaign preying on people's desire to lick things
- Looting any mail resembling a birthday card from a grandparent
- Now accepting pipe bombs and anthrax for regular delivery
- Eliminating all zip codes containing the number 5
- Offering a free largemouth bass mailbox with the purchase of a USPS Premium account
- Getting into human trafficking
- Rebranding the agency as a hip new company known only as "The Service"
- Launching new "Please, Anyone, For The Love Of God, Mail Something" series of commercials

The Statistic

How Are We Dealing With Seasonal Winter Depression?

Statshot • Opinion • ISSUE 49•05 • Jan 31, 2013

The Photo

Michelle Obama Not So Keen On President's New Bangs

News in Photos • Lifestyle • ISSUE 49•04 • Jan 22, 2013

The Survey

Post Office Ending Saturday Mail Delivery

AMERICAN VOICES • Opinion • ISSUE 49•06 • Feb 6, 2013

 1.1K  141  3

Aiming to save $2 billion a year, the financially struggling U.S. Postal Service announced today that it would discontinue regular mail delivery on Saturdays beginning in August. What do you think?

“But what if I really want to communicate with someone and I’m unaware of the hundreds of better ways to do so?”

Simon Doyle –
Train Car Coupler

“Jesus fuck, why even have a weekend now?”

Brock Capps –
Import-Export Agent

“Have they tried putting someone nobody cares about anymore on a stamp? That could work.”

Vickie Meshover –
Systems Analyst