

Final Assignment for Harper Lee's *To Kill a Mockingbird

Sadly, the crazy beginning of the school year cut into our time to discuss some of the coolest aspects of To Kill a Mockingbird. As such, our final look at the book will be through this assignment. Your task is to write a one paragraph reflection on the symbol of the "mockingbird." Think about what the "mockingbird" signifies and who it best represents in the book. Please do not use the Internet to help you with this assignment. I care about what you think. If you would like to write more than a paragraph, please do so. You might also consider why Harper Lee chose this title for her book.

This assignment is due on Monday, October 3. Please have your books ready to turn in that day as well.

Final Assignment for Harper Lee's *To Kill a Mockingbird

Sadly, the crazy beginning of the school year cut into our time to discuss some of the coolest aspects of To Kill a Mockingbird. As such, our final look at the book will be through this assignment. Your task is to write a one paragraph reflection on the symbol of the "mockingbird." Think about what the "mockingbird" signifies and who it best represents in the book. Please do not use the Internet to help you with this assignment. I care about what you think. If you would like to write more than a paragraph, please do so. You might also consider why Harper Lee chose this title for her book.

This assignment is due on Monday, October 3. Please have your books ready to turn in that day as well.

