

What is your 20% Project?

What inspired your 20% project? What's your story?

What have you learned about your topic? What have you learned about yourself?

Have you given your project the time and energy that it deserves? Please explain. Be honest and remember that this question is about YOU, not the teacher, not the project.

I would like to tell you a few things that I have learned during this inaugural 20% Project. I learned that many students don't know what they are passionate about. This was perhaps my biggest surprise and definitely something that I will think about for next year. I also learned that students are not used to autonomy or directing their own learning.

What suggestions do you have for me for next year's students?
